Passage 5: Choose the BEST answers to the questions

Martin Luther King, is well-known for his work in civil rights and for his many famous speeches, among which is his moving "I have a dream" speech. But fewer people know much about King's childhood. M.L., as he was called, was born in 1929 in Atlanta, Georgia, at the home of his maternal grandfather. M.L.'s grandfather purchased their home on Auburn Avenue in 1909, twenty years before M.L was born. His grandfather allowed the house to be used as a meeting place for a number of organizations dedicated to the education and social advancement of blacks. M.L. grew up in the atmosphere, with his home being used as a community gathering place, and was no doubt influenced by it.

M.L.'s childhood was not especially eventfully. His father was a minister and his mother was a musician. He was the second of three children, and he attended all black schools in a black neighborhood. The neighborhood was not poor, however. Auburn Avenue was an area of banks, insurance companies, builders, jewelers, tailors, doctors, lawyers, and other businesses and services. Even in the face of Atlanta's segregation, the district thrived. Dr. King never forgot the community spirit he had known as a child, nor did he forget the racial prejudice that was a huge barrier keeping black Atlantans from mingling with whites.

1. V	Vhat is the passage mainly about?
	A. The prejudice that existed in Atlanta.	B. M.	L.'s grandfather
	C. Martin Luther King's childhood.	D. Th	e neighborhood King	g grew up in

Passage 6. Read the passage and choose the best answer:

You've been invited to a job interview and now you want to do everything within your power to get the job. So what do you need to do to prepare yourself for the big day?

First, you should find out as much as you possibly can about the position, the company, the industry and even the interviewer. You should go to your prospective employer's website on the internet, where the company presents itself as it wants to be seen; relevant trade journals will then tell you how it is viewed by others. You should perhaps also speak to people who work or have worked for the company, if at all possible.

All this information will give you a great deal to talk about during the interview and so help create the right impression. The more you know, the greater your competitive edge over other candidates. To help increase confidence, many people practise the interview in front of a mirror. However, you should instead try it out with a real person: it's far more realistic and it gives you the chance to ask him or her for some feedback on your performance. In particular, you should practise answers to common questions you can expect to be asked such as: "What do you consider to be your major strengths and weaknesses?", "Why do you want to work for this company?", or "Where do you see yourself in five years' time?" etc.

An interview is also your chance to decide whether you want to work for the company, so be prepared to ask three or four relevant questions yourself. You shouldn't ever underestimate the effect of your appearance on the interviewer; make sure you wear a suit to the interview, even if the normal working environment of the company allows for more informal dress.

Punctuality is another crucial factor with regards to first impressions, and for this reason you should always arrive at the interview site at least 15 minutes before your scheduled meeting. All that's left now is the interview itself. See over for information and advice on successful interview strategies.

Ken's Travel Blog:
My Day at the Monkey Buffet Festival
This past weekend, I experienced the truly unique Monkey Buffet Festival in the town of Lop Buri, Thailand. The event was established in 1989 by a local entrepreneur who aimed to attract tourists to the area.
The festival honours the many long-tailed macaque monkeys that are native to the area, which the locals consider symbols of good luck. People prepare a huge feast for the monkeys, including over two tonnes of fresh fruit and vegetables. These are beautifully arranged on tables and in huge towers set up around the historic Phra Prang Sam Yot temple, the area's major cultural landmark.
Walking through Lopburi during the festival, there was so much excitement in the air. There were hundreds of monkeys all over the town, climbing on tables, trees and buildings and playfully interacting with both locals and tourists. There were also musical performances, and dances with people dressed in colourful costumes. It was a great opportunity for me to take some photos.
For me, the most memorable part was watching the monkeys as they made their way through the crowds to enjoy the delicious food prepared for them. I'm not an emotional person, but it was heart-warming to see the locals' respect and care for these animals. The Monkey Buffet Festival offers more than just fun; it provides a look into the close relationship that Lop Buri's residents have with nature. Anyone interested in unique cultural events should consider visiting this event. It really is an event like no other.
1. The Monkey Buffet Festival is a traditional Thai festival.
2. The festival takes place inside a famous local building.
3. The monkeys weren't shy of people.
4. Ken enjoyed eating local food at the festival.
5. Ken had an emotional reaction to what he saw at the festival.

Young graduates entering the workforce often face a challenging transition into their first professional roles. Apart from the excitement of beginning a new job, there are common challenges that could result in negative feelings.

One major mistake is having unrealistic expectations. New graduates could expect quick advancement or immediate success, which could create disappointment or shame when things don't turn out as well as they've hoped. The workplace can also be a source of shock due to an unexpected work culture or a competitive environment that is completely different from the academic world. Furthermore, the fear of making mistakes can negatively affect young workers, preventing their growth and reducing their self-confidence. Lastly, the demands of a full-time job with new responsibilities can result in burnout, which makes them exhausted.

To deal with those challenges, it is essential for new graduates to adopt a realistic mindset and seek mentorship. By proactively dealing with the obstacles, young graduates can navigate their first jobs with less stress and greater potential for success.

39. Which of the following could be the best title for the text?

A Young Workers: Common Mistakes and Effects

B Young Workers: Work Pressure and Solutions

C Young Workers: Job Challenges and Solutions

D Young Workers: Unexpected Challenges and Advantages

40. The word advancement in paragraph 2 is opposite in meaning to

A progress B promotion C decrease D security
41. The phrase turn out in paragraph 2 is closest in meaning to ______.

A end up B call off C break down D bring up 42. The word them in paragraph 2 refers to ______.

A responsibilities B demands C workers D mistakes

43. Which of the following is NOT mentioned in the text?

A The young workers could be disappointed if they have false expectations.

B Some young graduates might find the new workplace shocking.

C Too many responsibilities can be exhausting to young graduates.

D With appropriate mentorship, young graduates can climb up the career ladder quickly.

Stephen William Hawking (1942-2018) was a famous physicist, cosmologist and great author. Despite suffering from physical disabilities, he overcame lots of obstacles to become a great scientist.

Born as a healthy child in Oxford, England, Stephen had a normal childhood. Despite having low grades in most subjects at school, he dreamt of going to university. Years later, he realised his dream with a first-class Bachelor's degree in Physics at Oxford University and then pursued a PhD in Cosmology at Cambridge University.

Unfortunately, by the time he completed his PhD in 1966, he had been diagnosed with amyotrophic lateral sclerosis (ALS), a kind of neurological disease that made him unable to use his muscles the same as normal people. Despite his severe physical disabilities, Stephen managed to fulfil his ambitions and significantly contributed to modern science. In 1974, Stephen proposed that black holes emit radiation, which is now known as Hawking radiation, a groundbreaking idea that challenged other existing theories. Being unable to write or speak properly, Stephen had to speak through a portable computer that was modified to fit his wheelchair. That computer helped him write lots of books, one of which was "A Brief History of Time" published in 1988, which featured scientific concepts of the universe. Stephen also appeared on lots of TV programmes, explaining complicated concepts to TV viewers in simple ways, which made him popular outside his academic community.

One of the greatest lessons that people can learn from Hawking might be his will to survive. A disabled person diagnosed with ALS was thought to be able to survive another 4 years, but Stephen managed to survive for 55 years, which was beyond doctors' expectations. Some of them couldn't explain that miracle. He left lots of thought-provoking quotations, one of which was "My advice to other disabled people would be, concentrate on things your disability doesn't prevent you from doing well, and don't regret the things it interferes with. Don't be disabled in spirit as well as physically." Stephen's legacy will live on for the ages.
